Catholic Women Preach

Raising Voices, Renewing the Church

Elizabeth A. Donnelly & Russ Petrus, editors

“"A tremendous resource for the church."

—James Martin, SJ

“From the first Pentecost to our own day, the Spirit continues to pour out abundant gifts on the whole People of God. Central to the gifts bestowed in baptism is the commission to women as well as to men from every nation to proclaim the good news that “the reign of God is at hand.” This volume of preaching by faith-filled missionary disciples from around the globe is a valuable response to the call of Pope Francis for a “more incisive role for women” in the Church’s mission. The testimony of these women inspires unexpected hope and suggests creative possibilities for a fuller hearing—and living—of the Gospel. At the same time, the collection raises the disturbing question of why we so rarely hear the Gospel preached by women.”

“In this book, Betty Anne Donnelly and Russ Petrus have gathered a liturgical year’s worth of wisdom from some of the most insightful, gifted Catholic women of our day. This text will accompany Catholics in prayer and reflection. It will inspire preachers and hearers of God’s word. Most importantly, it will remind us all that women’s voices have been at the heart of the Christian message since Mary Magdalene first witnessed the empty tomb on Easter morning. The chorus of preachers within these pages is transnational and diverse, composed of women religious and lay women, professors and ministers. Each brings hopeful insight to the lectionary readings. Together, they help us along the journey to becoming a church that recognizes the charism of preaching in all its members.”
